

THE OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY'S CENTER FOR MEDIEVAL AND RENAISSANCE STUDIES
PRESENTS OUR 2007-2008 LECTURE SERIES

Our lecture series for 2007-08 is addressed to those who are interested in crossing traditional boundaries, not only the boundaries that mark off linguistic territories, but those that separate disciplines, media, cultures, and time periods as well. The hallmark of our series is variety, and we hope that everyone will find something to delight and instruct them among the multiplicity of topics addressed by our distinguished speakers this year.

All 2007-08 lectures will be held at 2:30 pm in the Science and Engineering Library, Room 090, except as noted below.

Autumn 2007.....

PETER BURKE

Cambridge University
"Translating the Turks:
A Case-Study in the Translation of Cultures"
September 28, 2007

TERRY JONES

Independent Scholar
"Translating Richard II"
Monday, October 8, 2007, 4:30 pm
McPherson Lab, Room 1000
Annual Public Lecture

MALCOLM BARBER

Reading University
"From Heroes to Heretics: The Sudden Demise of the Templars"
October 19, 2007

FIONA SOMERSET

Duke University
"Translation and Censorship"
November 2, 2007

MERADITH McMUNN

Rhode Island College
"The Artist as Translator of the Roman de la Rose"
November 16, 2007

Winter 2008.....

BRUCE HOLSINGER

University of Virginia
"Beautiful Tropes: Translating Liturgy in Premodern England"
February 22, 2008

RICHARD KINKADE

University of Arizona
"The Translations of Alphonse the Wise and the Transformation of the Castilian Language"
March 7, 2008

Spring 2008.....

KEVIN J. HARTY

La Salle University
"The Reel Maid of Orleans:
The Film Lives of Joan of Arc"
April 11, 2008

GAIL KERN PASTER

The Folger Shakespeare Library
"Head to Head: The Dialogue of Skin and Skull in Holbein and Hamlet"
May 2, 2008

KIM BUTLER

American University
"Translating Word to Image:
Picturing Eloquence in the Sistine Ceiling"
May 16, 2008